Pre-Emption Claims and Public Lands

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in all cases where settlers or occupants... prior to the first day of... 1830..." The provisions of the above act give the right of pre-emption to quarter sections to such persons as were entitled to the benefit of making an entry from the operation of the act.

Exceptions and conditions noted include:

1. Where the public surveys fail.
2. Where the land was not attached to a land district, or the boundary line between two States.
3. Where the land has been reserved.

The article discusses the rapid emigration to that section of the state north of the Illinois river, noting that the sale of lands granted by congress occurred in a comparatively short space of time.

News, Reports, and Editorials

- Internal Improvements: A discussion on the practicality of making the northern route and the want of a rail road to Lake Michigan, noting that the population of that section of the state is increasing, contributing largely to the current of emigration.
- Indian Affairs: Reports on the movements of Kuck, the Sacs and Foxes returning to their former encampment, and a company of warriors from Vermont or Green County passing through the place.
- Factory Accident: An article from the New London Gazette (Feb. 15) details a frightful scene where a girl's hair caught in a factory shaft, tearing off her scalp. Doctors Miller and Phillip immediately replaced and adjusted it, conveying the patient to her room.
- Civil War in Missouri: Citing the St. Louis Republican, the text details affairs in Jackson County and conflicts with the Mormons, mentioning that between twenty and thirty citizens were involved in armed resistance against federal officers.
- Alabama & Nullification: An article addressing the Charleston Courier, Governor Gayle, and the Creek lands. It discusses a conflict involving state sovereignty, the General Government, and the death of an outlaw named Owens who was shot while resisting arrest by the United States Marshal. The treaty of 1832 conditionally allowed for the removal of people from the territory.
- Gold Region: A geological report by Professor Hitchcock published in the American Journal of Science states that Gold has been found.
